

Become an Expert on Lead Poisoning!

Learn How to Teach Your Clients and Constituents About Lead Poisoning Prevention

Lead poisoning in early childhood is associated with reduced intelligence, learning problems, attention disorders, and aggressive and delinquent behavior. Lead's harmful effects can be permanent. Thus, prevention is the best approach to lead poisoning. Fortunately lead poisoning is entirely preventable, and education can be an effective method for prevention.

Our Train-the-Trainer Program will teach staff from agencies and organizations that serve high-risk families so they can, in turn teach their clients and constituents about lead poisoning. By creating a strong infrastructure of groups knowledgeable about lead poisoning, we hope to prevent future generations of children from getting this devastating disease.

This workshop will prepare you to teach lead poisoning prevention methods to parents of children at high risk of lead poisoning. The workshop will also enable you to make appropriate referrals for families where a child has lead poisoning.

Workshop size is limited so please register early. A training manual will be provided and lunch will be served. The Training is entirely free!
